

Equipment from Closed Campbell Plant Will Be Auctioned

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Soup makers looking for giant stainless steel kettles or canning equipment may be in luck.

The new owners of a shuttered Campbell Soup Co. [1] factory in Sacramento will begin auctioning off equipment from the facility on Tuesday.

The three-day auction is intended to clear space for potential tenants and raise cash. The factory's inventory is worth an estimated $6 million to $8 million.

Shira Weissman is chief operating officer with Rabin, one of the plant's owners. She tells the Sacramento Bee [2] the auction will be conducted online and in person.

The factory was in operation for 66 years before it closed in 2013. It lies on a 129-acre site.

—

Information from: The Sacramento Bee, <http://www.sacbee.com> [3]

Source URL (retrieved on 02/01/2015 - 1:14am):

<http://www.foodmanufacturing.com/news/2014/02/equipment-closed-campbell-plant-will-be-auctioned>

Links:

[1] <http://www.foodmanufacturing.com/news/2014/02/campbell-soup-2q-boosted-late-thanksgiving>

[2] <http://bit.ly/NuA51i>

[3] <http://www.sacbee.com>