

Infographic: Fact vs. Fiction on Craft Beer, Cider

Technomic, Inc.

Spotlight on CRAFT BEER & CIDER

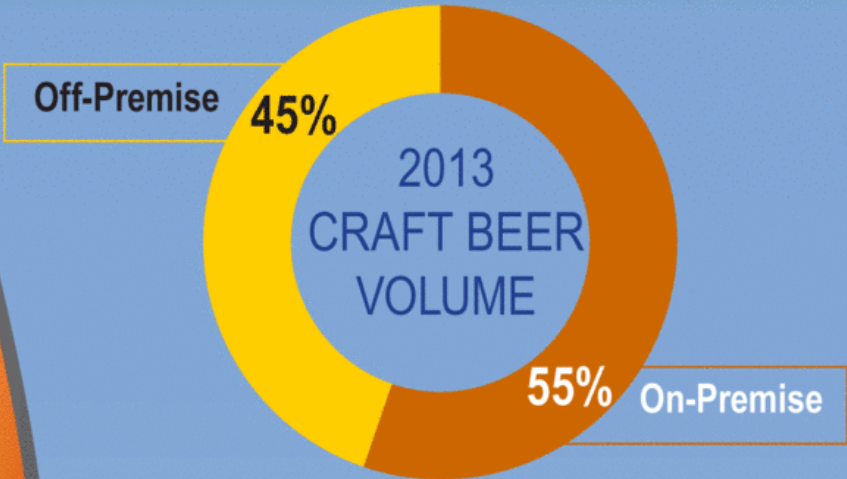

Myth:

Hispanic consumers do not drink craft beer.

Reality: Consumers who purchase craft beer away from home once a week or more, and have four or more drinks per visit, skew toward:

- > Hispanics
- > Men
- > Millennials and Gen Xers
- > Northwest residents

Myth: More craft beer is purchased at retail than in restaurants and bars.

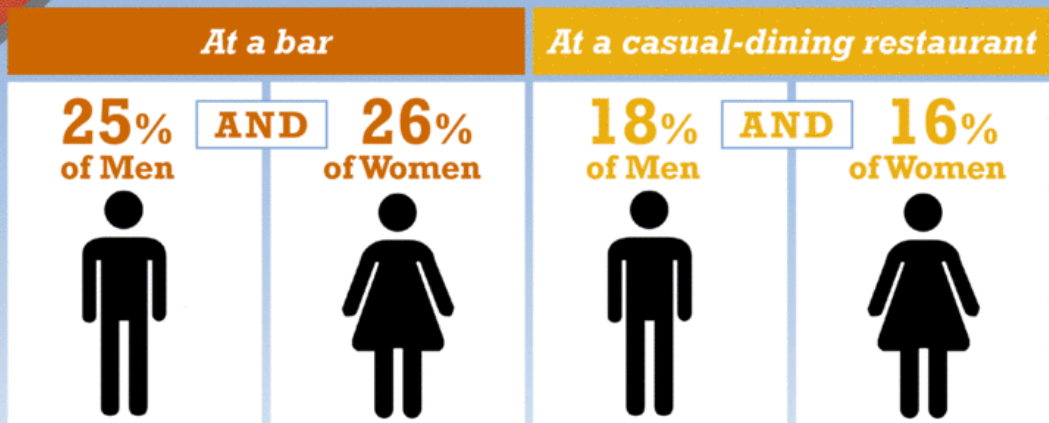

Reality: While one-quarter of total beer volume occurs in the on-premise channel, the portion of craft beer sold through restaurants and bars is notably higher.

MYTH: Only women drink cider

REALITY: Men and women who regularly drink craft beer and cider in restaurants choose cider at similar frequency.

Percent of on-premise craft beer and cider drinkers who order cider on every/nearly every visit

Source: Technomic 2014 On-Premise Craft Beer & Cider

TECHNOMIC

technomic.com | Contact: Chris Urban | 312-506-3929

Craft beer and hard cider are on the fast track in restaurants and bars today, but Technomic's recently completed On-Premise Craft Beer & Cider study reveals that all is not as it seems with these trending beverages. (Technomic)

Infographic: Fact vs. Fiction on Craft Beer, Cider

Published on Food Manufacturing (<http://www.foodmanufacturing.com>)

Source URL (retrieved on 03/02/2015 - 2:45am):

<http://www.foodmanufacturing.com/news/2014/08/infographic-fact-vs-fiction-craft-beer-cider>