

Keurig Raises Coffee Prices By 9 Percent

Published on Food Manufacturing (<http://www.foodmanufacturing.com>)

Keurig Raises Coffee Prices By 9 Percent

Associated Press

WATERBURY, Vt. (AP) — Keurig Green Mountain is raising coffee prices by up to 9 percent effective in early November due to higher costs.

The Waterbury, Vermont company said Thursday that the price hike will be for all portion packs sold for its Keurig brewing systems and for all of its traditional bagged, fractional packs and bulk coffee products.

Keurig Green Mountain said that it needs to boost prices because of factors including higher prices for cocoa and green coffee and increases in packaging materials, energy and transportation costs. Green coffee is unroasted coffee.

The price increase is effective on Nov. 3.

Keurig Green Mountain Inc. is not the only company lifting coffee prices. In June J.M. Smucker Co. announced that it raised prices for most of its packaged coffee, including products sold under the Dunkin' Donuts and Folgers brands.

Coffee bean prices have surged this year, in part because of a fungus that swept through growing regions in Central America, damaging crops in Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras and other countries. A Brazilian drought has also played a role. Brazil is the world's biggest coffee producer.

Source URL (retrieved on 01/30/2015 - 8:49pm):

<http://www.foodmanufacturing.com/news/2014/08/keurig-raises-coffee-prices-9-percent>